Because negative qualities are often emphasized, we must be careful to remember that beauty exists everywhere. At Rincon, beauty waits in every moment, but we must look for it. When we find, appreciate, and create beauty, we receive from the world riches for the mind.

Welcome to today! Listen to it, see it, touch it, taste it, and experience it, for it is beauty.

Joanne,
You've really been a great lab assistant and alot of help to all us dummies struggling through Biology. Best of luck always. Take care and maybe I'll see you next year.

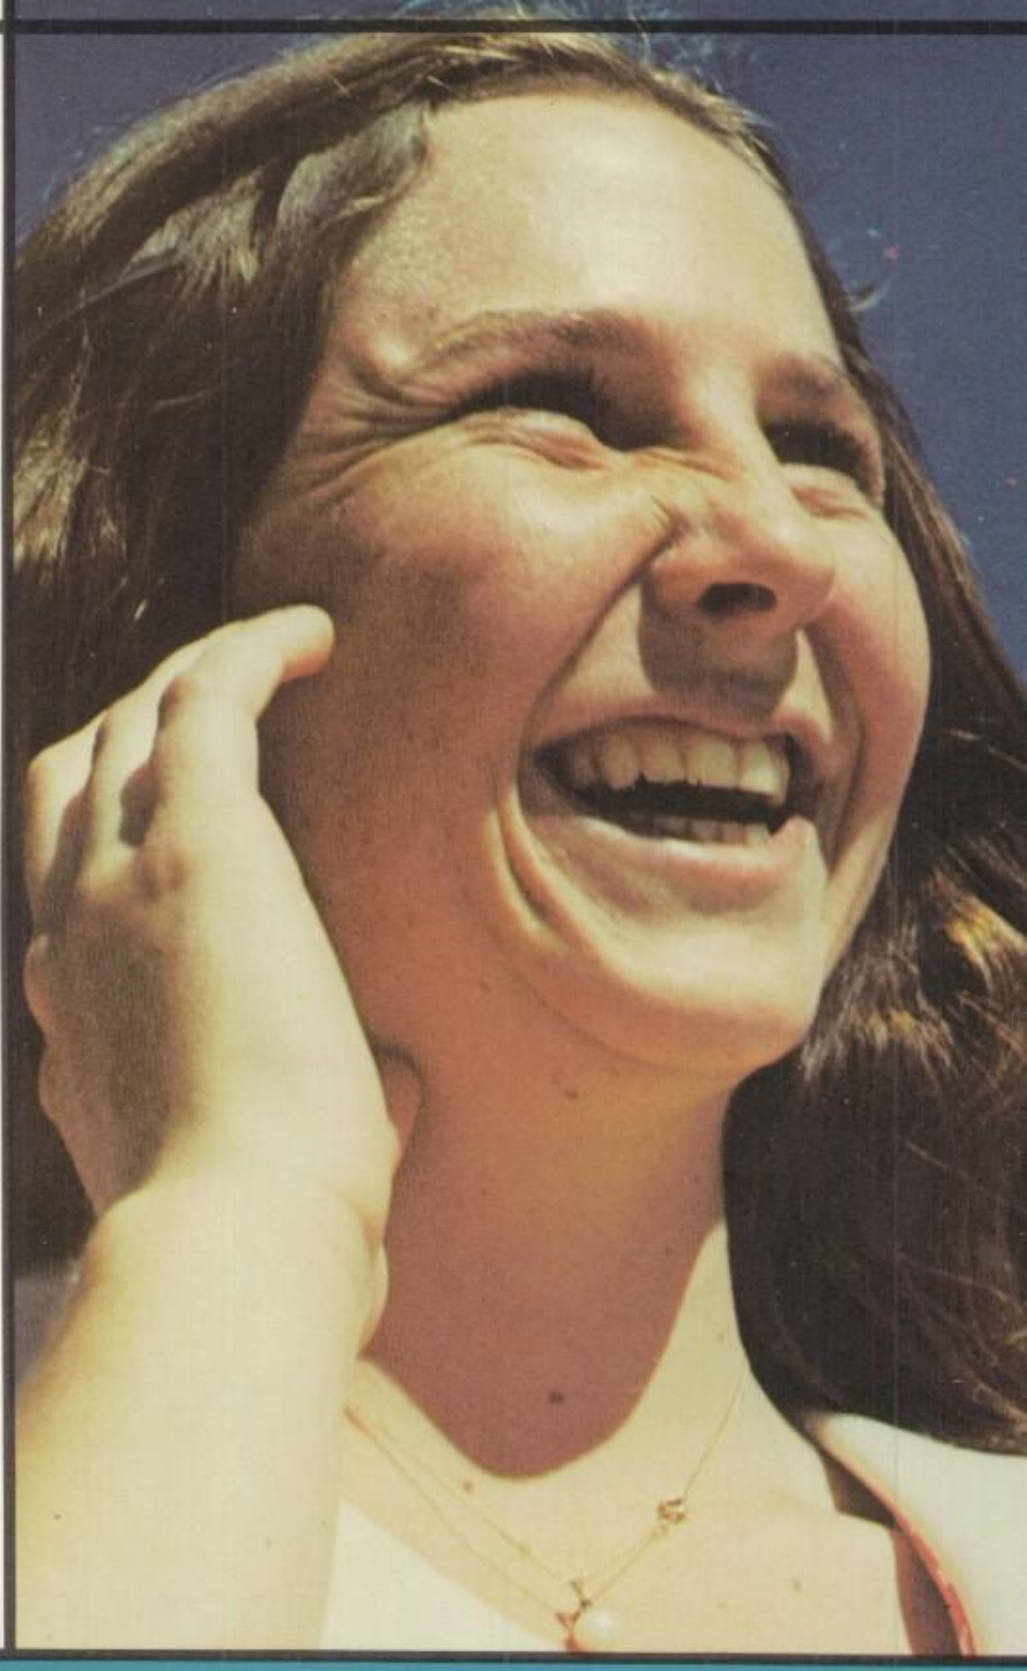
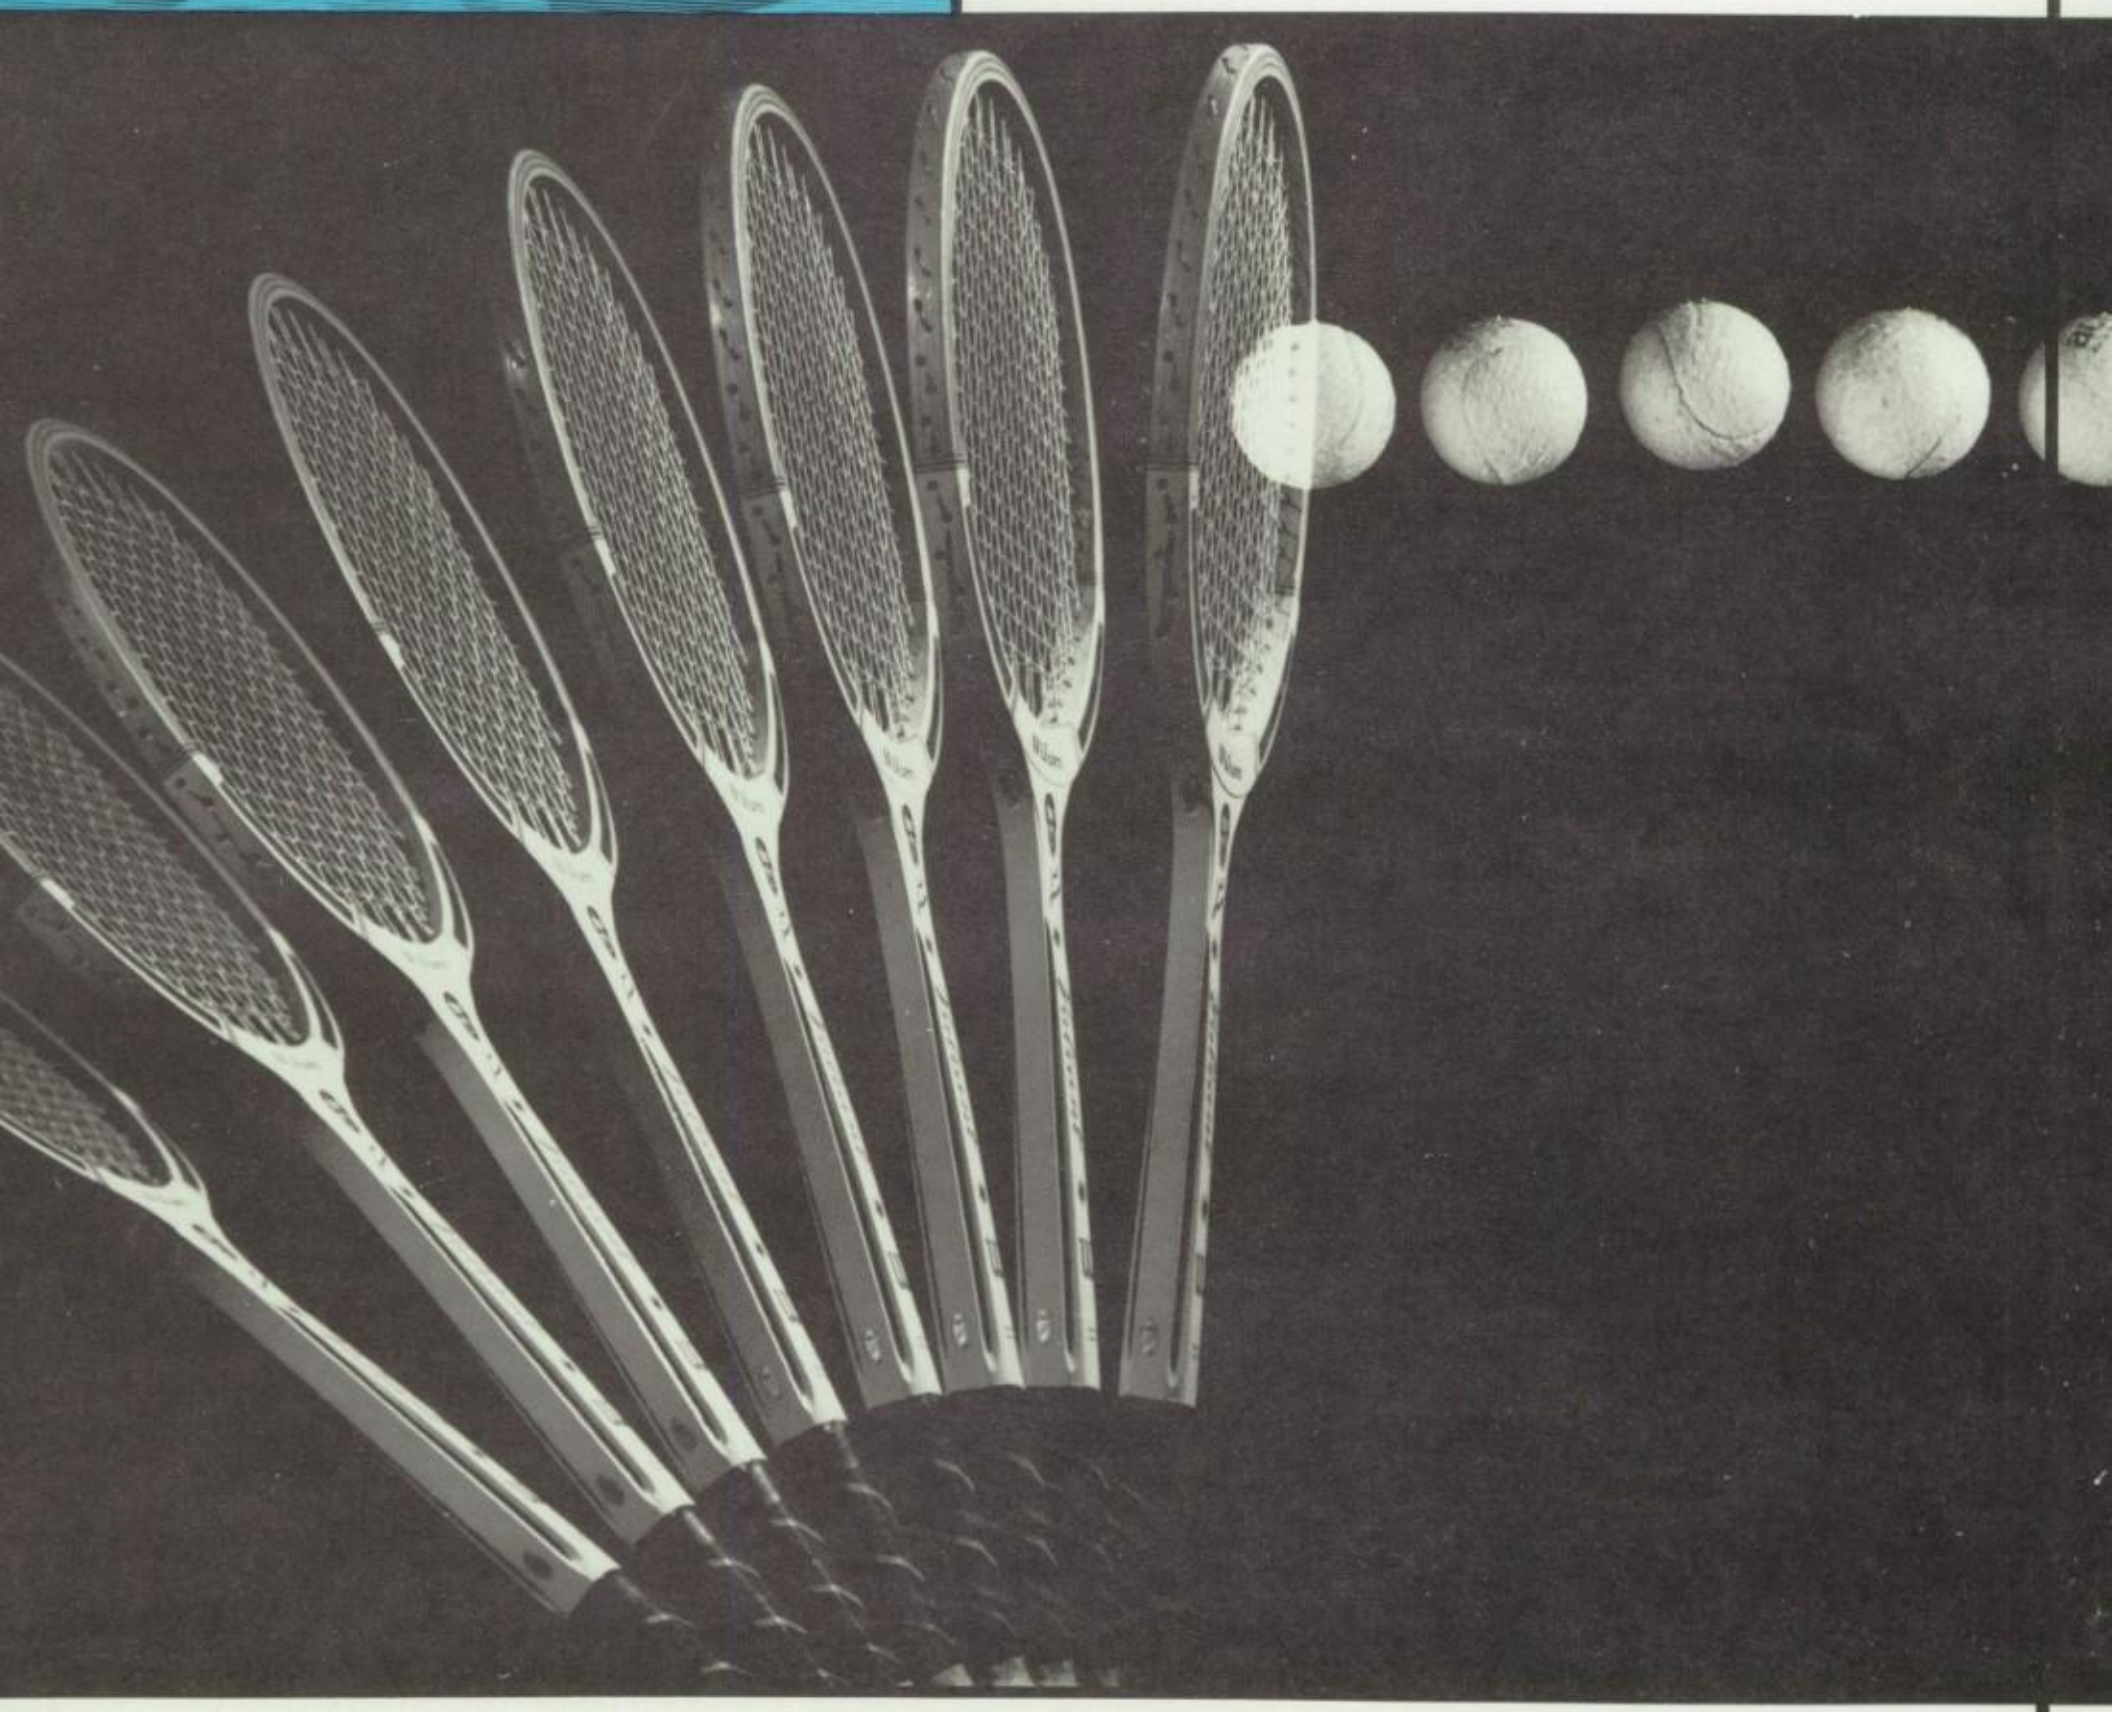
Beauty is found wherever people are free to celebrate life in their own way.





Beauty is a feeling, a sense in and around every individual. It's something special for each person to find and to treasure always.

Under Head Coach Andy Rumic and Assistants Bill Zillman and Barry Dean Rincon's varsity football squad ended a disappointing season with a 3-7 record. In league play the Rangers were 2-4, finishing in sixth place among the seven teams in the AAA South B-League.

Of the 15 teams in the Tucson area, Rincon ranked fourteenth in both total offense and team defense, scoring an average of 11.8 points per contest while opponents chalked up an average of 20.5 points.

Although the varsity squad was plagued by numerous injuries, there were several bright spots in the Ranger lineup. In seven games fullback Dave Whetton gained 414 yards on 47 carries for the highest average in the city, 8.8 yards per carry. Running mate Kurt Hough accumulated a total of 482 yards rushing, tenth best in the city, and made All-City honorable mention for his performances as a defensive back. Other All-City honors went to center John Whitley who made the first team offensive squad and to defensive end Joe Flannery who merited a position on the second team defensive unit.

Finishing the season with a 10-5 record, Rincon's varsity cross country team continued its winning tradition under nine-year veteran coach, Ned Mackey. Leading the team was senior Tom Molloy while Robert Hammerstein, Steve Mills, Gerald Molinar, and team captain Chaco Vargas supplied the depth necessary for this year's cross country success. Outstanding juniors Gerard Gillette and Mike Naifeh should provide a sound basis for next year's squad.

Under the direction of Coach Bill Mehle this year's Varsity Basketball squad continued Rincon's winning tradition, ending the season with an outstanding record of 23-2. The team's list of achievements includes a 17-game winning streak, first place in the B-League and first place in the AAA Southern Division.

This year's success was the result of a well-disciplined offense, a tenacious defense and a consistent ability to outrebound the opponent. Statistacally, the Rangers' defense was the best in the city as they held opponents to an average of only 56.3 points per game. Offensively, the cagers were third scoring an average of 71.7 points per outing.

In the Southern Division Tournament, Rincon handily defeated Catalina, Sahuaro, and Salpointe to secure the Southern Division Championship and a berth in the State Tournament. However, the Rangers fared less well in State action, defeating Scottsdale in the first game, but falling to Alhambra in the semifinals.

Although the Rangers' success came through a team effort, several individuals were singled out for their performances. All-City honors went to senior Mike Reynolds, junior Dave Henson, and sophomore Steve King. Henson and King also achieved positions on the All-State team.

Due to a shortage of experienced wrestlers, this year's varsity squad made a 2-9 showing for the regular season and placed twelfth among the thirteen teams competing in the AAA Southern Division Tournament. In spite of a dismal season, there were several individual successes: Fred Mason (8-3), Frank Solis (6-3), Dave Pain (5-3-3), and Jim Mattox (4-3). These men made outstanding contributions to the team. Coach Morris Schmieder is optimistic about Rincon's wrestling future. According to coach Schmieder, this year's strong-finishing J.V. squad combined with a large number of returning varsity wrestlers will supply the talent necessary for success.

The Girls' Varsity Volleyball Team started by losing two games to Catalina due to first-game tension, according to coach Toni Edwards. The Catalina match was Rincon's only loss, as the team completed the season with little competition. The State Championship in volleyball was won for the first time in Rincon's history. Cyndi Andrews made first string All-State, and Peggy Carson and Sylvia Cruz took second string positions on the All-State Team.

In the opinion of coach Toni Edwards, the strength of this year's team was in the teamwork and cooperation. Each member of the team contributed, making an evenly balanced force. All of this year's first string benefited from the experience of playing on last year's team. Coach Edwards looks forward to more work next year, since five of this year's six players will graduate.

A. Summoning all the power she can manage, Heather Mauch serves the volleyball, hoping for another Rincon point.

B. At the start of the Palo Verde game, Cynthia Andrews and Sue Weaver stand ready and watch the serve.

ADVANCED BAND AND TWIRLERS

Cathy Rounds

"Beauty is knowing you can give a good performance."

A. Kneeling on the grass for an unusual effect, the saxophone section of the marching band contributes to the half-time music and formations.

B. In their half-time performance of "Duelin' Banjos", the band forms a banjo to add emphasis to the music.

C. Finding pleasure in every second of the football game performance, Patty Ruffner pours all of her energy into the twirler-and-band production.

D. Marching onto the field with precise and measured steps, the twirlers smile with anticipation and enjoyment.

to learn to fly at Rincon High School." Tom Serkowski.

"We are making progress in the air but not as fast as we are on the ground in Rincon's Aviation Club." John Barberii.

"Our Aviation Club is different because it is the only one of its kind." James Preble, advisor.

"The Printing Club has one project a year which is the only one to make money. This project is the printing and selling of football programs." Joe Flannery, president.

"Money in the Printing Club is used for an annual Christmas banquet, scholarships, and to purchase materials so Mr. Tassi can better educate the printing students, or printers of tomorrow." Tad Quinlan.

"The Printing Club has several functions, but the most important, as far as I am concerned, is that students interested in printing get a better idea and understanding of the possibilities printing has as a career, either in teaching or industry." Louis Tassi, advisor.

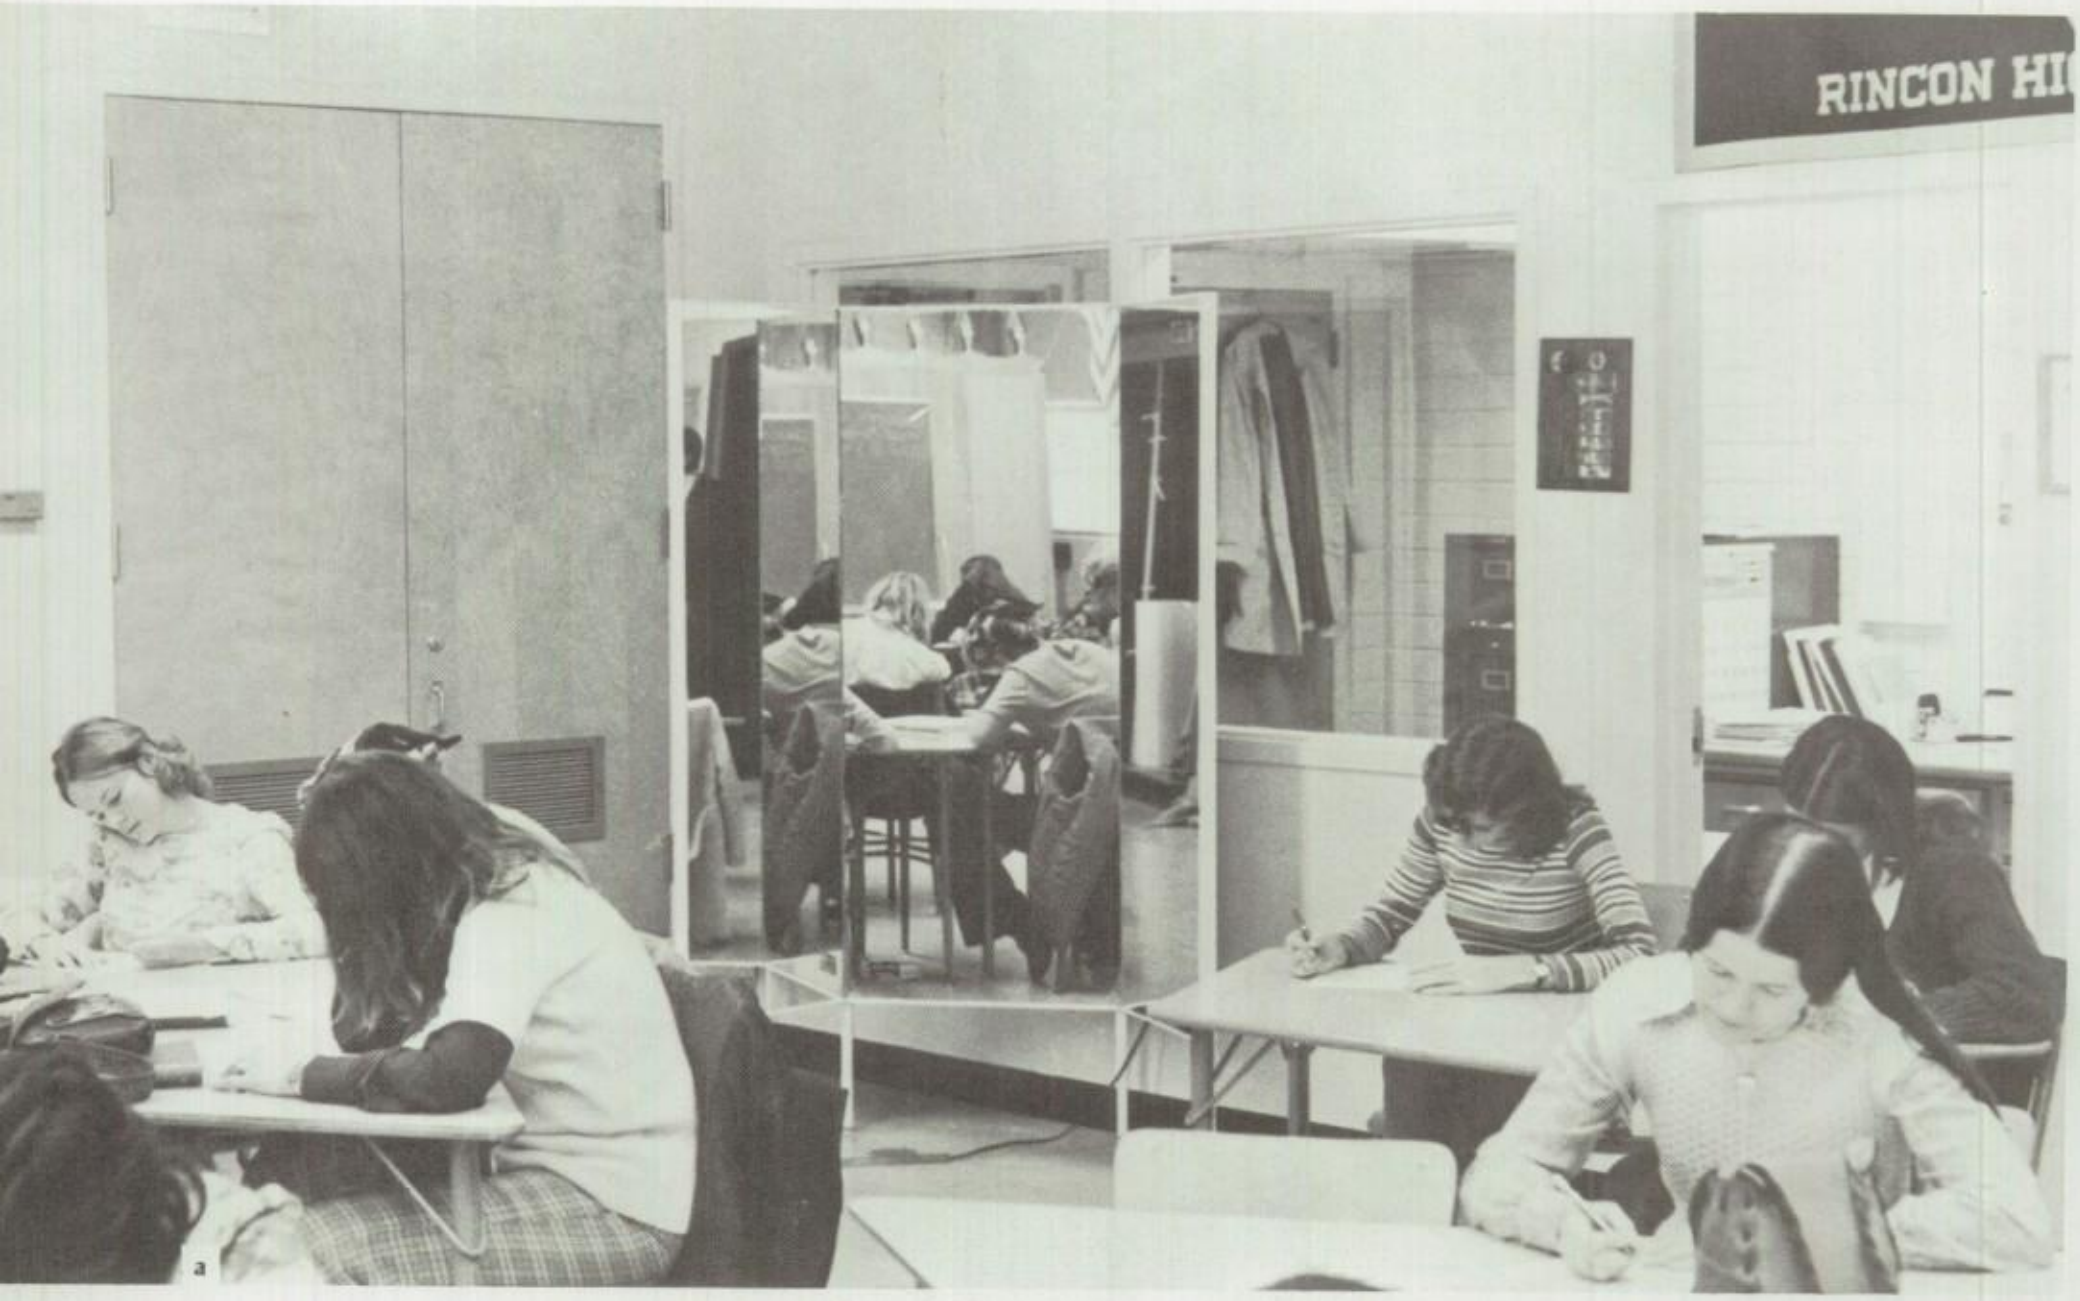
"Debate deals with a pertinent national topic, which helps you become aware of the world around you and how it affects others. Also you gain experience dealing with other people and their opinions." Randy Fishburn

"Researching the entire year on an important national problem gives a debater a wealth of background information on current events. Learning to think quickly and logically is an invaluable experience that can give an individual poise and confidence in speaking before a group of people." Janet Guptill.

"Most of our students are future lawyers; debate is a tool for their futures." Jack Boswell, advisor.



A. Preparing questionnaires for marketing studies provides a challenge for the industrious minds of Rincon's branch of DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America).

B. Oblivious to the passage of time and the increasing sunlight coming in around the blades of the blinds, the first period DECA class wakes up reluctantly to study advertising.

C. Interested in their meeting, but still able to enjoy a laugh, DECA members are amused by a clever remark.

D. As Yolanda Alvarez stifles a laugh, Cathy Peabody enjoys the joking and teasing at a DECA meeting.

E. Once in a while a short rest is necessary to retain sanity. Ernest Redondo relieved by a break in the monotony of his work is distracted by the camera.

B. Racing across the amphitheater in a slightly unorthodox manner, Dave Ford and Steve Andre compete in an initiation gag invented by lettermen.

C. Rushing to complete his initiation stunt quickly, Mike Naifeh looks forward to next year, when he will be initiating more new members.

D. Lettermen's initiation week means planning and scheming the most humiliating activities for those new members being tested. Inductor Carl Capanna and inductee Bill Osmer smile innocently as they check over the list of devilish deeds.

E. Dressed in clothes appropriate for his initiation clowning, Hunter Nash performs for the amused audience of lunch eaters in the cafeteria.

MEDIA CLUB AND PHOTOGRAPHY

"Everything's coming up daisies."

Barbara Pinter, advisor

"In Media Club you learn about film, t.v., video tape, and other means of communication used in modern day society." Greg Leon.

"Society and communication are interdependent. One cannot exist without the other." Dan Davis, president

"What we try to do is let the kids explore as many areas as possible. If they become experts by accident-well that's all right too." Orville Northam.

"In photography students are free to do what they want. Yearbook is our main concern all year, but we do have scholastic contests to enter." Bill Osmer.

"When I look through the camera I think of myself as an artist concentrating on form, feeling, and emotion." Chaco Vargas.

A. Soon after shooting a short segment, Jennifer Weston, Mike Bagalini, May Hagen, and Tad Quinlan go over the good and bad points of the film.

B. Working to provide an interesting film are Gus Meyers, Myrna Matter and Greg Leon while Bruce Tanner and Olivia Ramirez supply their own entertainment.

C. While he ignores the graffiti behind him, John MacCabe studies the complicated structure of a television set.

D. While Harrie Ann Grossman looks disgustedly at some new pictures, Bill Osmer teases fellow photographer Chaco Vargas with a chocolate doughnut.

E. Photographers Willie Fong and Larry Young patiently await their developed pictures, hoping for good results.

A. Gripping a finished page tightly in his hand, Bill Bennett shows pleasure in a grin stretched across his face.

B. Being on the Rawhide staff often involves days with too much work, and some days with nothing to do. George Jacome takes advantage of an easy day.

C. Sorting papers is boring work, but Cari Robbins performs the necessary task to finish it as soon as possible.

D. Advisor Al McGinnis, Elaine Wickham, and Marcella Davison cooperate in finding a mutually agreeable solution.

E. Reaching for new ideas to improve their sections, Cathy Rounds and Candy King improvise layouts.

"The challenge of producing a yearbook is to organize the staff, the photographers, and the equipment within the budget, around the printing schedule and toward the delivery date while attempting to be terribly creative, relatively accurate, and admirably traditional." Al McGinnis, advisor.

"It is not just putting together the past events of the year. It's taking the events and depicting them so that the book appeals to all 2,561 members of the student body." Chris Wisz, managing editor.

"I realize that no one will read this except me and possibly a few other peers who are bored with the rest of the book. However, I do feel the need to inform myself and those few, of the immense undertaking that we, the 1974 Rawhide staff, have accomplished. By concentrating our efforts, we have produced an outstanding piece of literature. My reason for speaking so highly of this book is that during the past nine months as editor, my self-confidence has become more and more non-existent. Now I recognize the need to rebuild it. I can achieve this through the belief, no matter how close to or far from the truth I may be, that this is one hell of a yearbook." Peggy Bower, editor.

C. Concerned about possible bruises, Leslie Idaspe examines her arm after donating to the Red Cross blood drive.

D. S.C.O.P.E. members Bob Knippen and Steve Lindsey review some of the more humorous suggestions for projects.

E. With a cushion crushed between her fingers, Laurie Knuth adds to the supply of Red Cross emergency blood.

F. Senior Mike Livieratos discusses new environmental discoveries with Curtis Albertson, S.C.O.P.E. advisor.

RED CROSS CLUB AND SCOPE

"Before we solve environmental problems, we must be aware of the causes and the problems." Mike Livieratos.

"The goal of Students' Committee Opposed to the Pollution of the Environment, (S.C.O.P.E.), is to expose some students to the environmental problems that face mankind." Curtis Albertson, advisor.

"This year the Environmental Studies class has established a trend toward the idea of ecology again. With this start, the class can try to tackle the block of apathy in its way. Be aware of what you can do; care about ecology!" Susan Kaplan, president.

"Red Cross is a worthwhile organization that mostly works behind the scenes." Chris Richardson.

"We got a lot accomplished this year due to the hard work of all the members." Ed Matthew, president.

"Red Cross should be a student initiated club, but a lot of the interest seems to be diminishing." Erla Everitt, advisor.

SKI CLUB AND STAGE CREW

"Dammit! Pull THIS rope so THAT curtain will go up!" Gerald Whitaker, advisor.

"Stage Crew is terrific because it's rewarding to open doors to different programs while getting paid at the same time." Mike Watts.

"Stage Crew is exciting, challenging and really great to be a part of; it builds character." David Hall.

"The Ski Club is the only club that asks its members to "think" snow and pray for snow. They like to go on trips but can't do any of the planning until they know where the snow is. There are more girls than boys in the club, and the boys love it." George Beimers, advisor.

"We didn't get it together too well this year because the lack of snow and organization made it impossible to be successful. Maybe next year." Jack Stevenson, president.

"Although we had more members than we have had in past years, the Ski Club was not very active because of the lack of money, gas, and snow. You don't have to know how to ski to be in the Ski Club, but it helps." Marcela Davison.

A. Ski Club members rush to dig out their pencils, waiting for directions to find the ski slopes for the next trip.

B. A Ski Club officers' meeting requires additional time and effort for paperwork from president Jack Stevenson and secretary Leigh Bivings.

C. Obeying his instructions meticulously, Ken Ziegler raises the curtain to start the next performance in action.

D. A typical Ski Club meeting involves discussion of locations for trips and equipment rentals with members showing varied degrees of interest.

E. Receiving instructions through his earphone, Bruce Raske operates the lighting board to add special effects to the concert in the auditorium.

Rincon students and faculty saw many changes in curriculum for the 1973-1974 school year. Many Rangers were able to take advantage of the Pima College credit courses offered at night. Seniors found themselves in eight-week English rotation courses with "Mini Courses" of two weeks in humor, mythology, careers, and musicals held between semesters; and freshmen got their first taste of Rincon English with six-week rotation courses. A Hebrew independent study class was brought to Rincon for the first time, with students meeting with their instructor once a week. The business department saw wider use of their computers, with a new "Telephone Computer" added to the data processing center.

Environmental Studies, an elective course dealing with the habitat of modern man, was added to the social studies department. Home Living, a co-ed elective for seniors, proved to be very successful, with many boys learning to sew.

In the math department, a math skills placement test was given to all incoming freshmen. Depending on their test grades, the freshmen were placed in the corresponding level of math, basic math, general math, algebra or geometry.

For the first time, the pass-fail grading option was made available to boys in the physical education department. Co-ed recreation was extremely successful again this year.

The Rincon library purchased almost two thousand books for its collection and plans are being made for expansion of the library.

D. Ned Mackey—English; track and cross-country coach; Cinderellas' Club advisor.

E. Joe Young—general math; algebra.

Nature's beauty

Rincon desert is nature

Rincon desert is beauty

Thus logic has taught us.

When natural beauty becomes threatened by progress, one is quick to scorn the necessity for man to advance. Instead of lamenting the loss of the natural terrain, one should not only learn to accept, but to enjoy the NEW look of beauty the land has taken on. There are beautiful creations to behold everywhere and beauty is present in all things. We must make a greater effort to recognize and relish this abundant beauty.

Joanne,
I'll miss you next year.
I really enjoyed being with you in German and math.
I don't know what I would have done without you in physics. Are you sure you won't reconsider and come to the U. of A?
Good luck next year!

Joanne,
Here's hoping your future will be what you want it to be! And may all your goals be reached. Stay the sweet Joanne we've all grown to know.

Joanne;
We've known each other for twelve years now. High school has been a real blast, huh? (My brain is working as well as usual, not good). I'm sure I will see more of you in the future since you live near by. Enjoy your summer and remember; you are a very capable person and can succeed in all your goals if you really care enough.
Lots of love, your close friend,
